For full particulars as to lerms of yearly adv

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1861. The graphic letter from Cincinnati that we publish this morning will be read with pleasure and ndmiration. We publish this morning the first in stallment of Andrew Johnson's two-day speech in the Senate, leaving out in the main only such documentary portions as are repeat ed substantially in the text. The speech which we will conclude in the Journal of to mercow, is throughout a masterly display of common sense, informed by heroic patriotism

L't everybody read it. The Courier, referring to the speech Mr. Lincoln at Indianapolis and to a portion of our comments thereon, says: Mr. Lincoln has proceeded "another stage o dis journey to Washington," without disavowin lireetly or indirectly "his Indianapolis speech as leclaration of his future policy. The Conrier in this matter is hardly just t the public or to itself. We will endenvor in the briefest possible manuer to be just to both, Mr. Lincoln, in his response to the Address of the German Workingmen of Cincinnati esent for the compliment paid mo by the tende of this address. In so far, as there is an allusion o our present national difficulties, and the sugastion of the views of the gentlemen who pr ent this address, I beg you will excuse me fro onterin; particularly upon it. I deem it due igself and the whole country, in the present extra videnary condition of the country and of publi-opinion, that I should wait and see the last devel press myself at the time of the inauguration

The Courier, with this speech in hand, republishes the last sentence alone, -republishes i with the emphasis of italics! Again, Mr. Lineoln, in his speech at Colimbus, so admirably given by the telegraph in our columns yesterday morning, said: Allusion has been made to the interest felt i the policy of the now administration On this, I have received from some a degree of credit for having kept silence—from others, I have received some censure. I still think I was right In the varying and constantly shifting scenes of t ble us to judge by the past, it has seemed fitting that, before speaking upon the difficulties of the country, I should have gained a view of the whol field, reserving the liberty to modify and change to

Now, it is but the commonest instice to ad mit, it is impossible fairly to deny, that Mi Lincoln, in the passages we have reproduced ahove, disavows, at least "indirectly," his In. | the First Consul of France entertained toward the dianapolis speech "as a declaration of his fu ture policy." If Mr. Lincoln, as he said to the Workingmen of Cincinnati, deemsit "dne" to himself and "the whole country, in the present extraordinary condition of the country to himself and "the whole country in the present extraordinary condition of the country to himself and "the whole country in the present extraordinary condition of the country to himself and "the whole country in the preparations and seeming aincerity; with sweet tones, euphonious utterances, meltificous voice, the other side."

The Mr. Lincoln, as he said to eight was in abeyance or trust, and therefore his State had violated no faith, and had a right to do not that occasion. I think he showed himself to be a lawyor in the proper sense of the term, for homedal alwayor in the proper sense of the term, for homedal alwayor in the proper sense of the term, for homedal alwayor argument, just suiting the case, leaving out and not noticing all authorities on the other side.

In making that speech, my intention—and I think I succeeded in is—was to place myself upon the principles of the Constitution and

I oppose this heresy for another reason; not only as being destructive of the existing government, but as being destructive of all fature confederacies that may be established in consequence of a disruption of the present one, and leavised my according to the doug, Bul, sir, there is another for those propositions to protein who do not care for those propositions to s being destructive of the existing government, ut as being destructive of all future confederaties that may be established in consequence of a isruption of the present one; and I availed myelf of the former occasion on which I spoke, to bring about reconciliation, but who, on the con-trary, have been afraid and alarmed that somenler my protest against it, and to do something extingnish a political heresy that ought nove be incorporated upon this or any other Govern sion could be censummated. What mere have been inflicted upon Louisiaus?

What mere have been inflicted upon Louisiaus? What more has been done by this government? it has not arisen out of the slavery question and low much protection has the received upon her its recent agitation. Even to this good day, the strike out the word "not," there were—yeas 5, and I think I succeeded in it—was to place myster place myster place myster and a pen the principles of the Censitation and the decrines inculeated by Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Johnson, and Jackson. Having examined the positions of those distinguished fathers of the Republic and compared them with they were right; and upon them I planted myself and upon them I planted myself mind and the Constitution, and it is also as a result of the exclusive and entire control of the navigation of the Union and the Constitution, which I look upon as a great political here sy. As far back as 1833, when I was a young man, hefore I made my advent into public life, when the controversy arose between the Federal covernment and the State of South Carolina, and it became necessary for Andrew Jackson. Then President of the United States, to issue his preclamation, exhorting that people to obey the law and comply with the requirements of the Constitution, I please the principles of the Constitution, I please the proclamation of the President of the United States, to issue his single the continuity of the President of the United States, to issue his single preclamation, exhorting that people to obey the law and comply with the requirements of the Constitution, I planted myself the principles of the Constitution, I planted myself the principle of the Constitution, I planted myself the principle of the Constitution, I planted myself upon the principle and the process of the Constitution, I planted myself upon the principle and the process of the Constitution, I planted myself upon the principle and the process of the Constitution, I planted myself upon the principle and the process of the Constitution, I planted myself and provided the decrines of the Constitution, I planted myself and provided the constitution, I planted myself and provided the constitution, I planted myself and provided the constitution, I planted myself the provided that the provided the constitution, I planted myself the provided that the provided that the pro thority to seede from this linen and set up exclusive control of the navigation of that great stream which is owned by all the States, which was paid for by the money of all the States, and upon whese borders the blood of many citizens of the States has been shed?

This is one of the nggrieved, the oppressed States! Mr. President, is it not apparent that these grievances and oppressions are mere pretenses. A large portion of the South, (and that portion of it I am willing to stand by to the very with was called for from the Senator from Oregon. I did not know that I had said anything and then you tell no that I have done you injustently the description of the navigation of the Carolina and Louisiana in this struggle. I do not think they are setting examples very worthy of imiliation. But, it, the appects that I made on the 19th of December seems to have preduced some little stir; and among other distingished Senators, the Sonator from Oregon [Mr. Lane] felt it his duty, lite in the evening, to make a teply to me. I do not see why it was called for from the Senator from Oregon. I did not know that I had said anything of the State of Tennessee, which was adopted in 19th of the constitution of the States.

STREET INSPECTORSHIP.—So far as we have observed, or can learn, the streets of the Eastern observed, or can learn, the streets of the Eastern District have been miserably neglected during the past year. We were assured at the commencement of the year that the exchange of the mencement of the year that the exchange of the street of the benefit of the services of your talented troups for an enlertainment for the benefit of the services. old inspector for the present incumbent would poor of the city. I am directed by my associate cause the work of street-cleaning to be better and the favor will be accepted with sentiments o done than it had been, but we have found out the mistake. We should all or nearly all be glad to convenience, I would suggest that Monday evening next and Mozart Hall would be a proper time the old, hypertor, back. Can be deeperhave the old Inspector back. Can be be persuaded to run for the office?

THE HOLMAN OPERA TROUPE .- Owing to the unpropi ious weather last evening, the benefit of Miss Sallie and Miss Julia at Mozart Hall, was postponed until this evening, when it will come off "weather or no." Prodigies have challenged our admiration many times, but these little people have brighter genius and higher cultivation than we have ever before discovered in children of their tender years. Their pieces are original, too, in many instances, and their advent upon the stage has marked n new era in the musical drama. These who do not see them this evening, on the occasion of their farewell benefit, will sacrifice one of the greatest pleasures of n life time.

STARTLING .- While the workmen were en gaged yesterdny laying the water-pipes to connet with a husiness house on the north sids of Market street, between Brook and Floyd, the pening of the ditch weakened the supports, and the huilding settled two or three inches, greatly to the consternation of the inmates.

PARDONED .- We have been informed that Gov Magoffin has pardoned Pat Donelly, convicted o munslaughter in this city last year. Donelly stabbed his friend while they were in a frelic to gether, and the unfortunate man died a few weeks after the wound was inflicted. It seems to have been a case for executive clemency.
